

THE wedding experience

hey loves

you're about to tie the knot

I'm ecstatic for you! This guide is packed with helpful tips that is aimed to assist you throughout the entire process of your wedding planning. My goal is to be so much more than your photographer. I'd love for you to consider me your friend because we'll be spending a lot of time together on your wedding day! Over the years, I've picked up a few tricks that will help me ensure that your images are simply stunning since you deserve nothing less. Allow me to give you the lowdown on what you may expect.

the wedding timeline

Create a detailed, hour-by-hour wedding day timeline to guarantee your wedding day runs smoothly. This will help you stay organized, stress-free, and on time. Share your wedding day timetable with your wedding party, wedding coordinator/planner, photographer, caterer, florist, and other vendors once you've completed it so that everyone is on the same page.

While most weddings follow the same format, the order in which these events occur may differ based on your preferences. It's not a one size fits all. Please feel free to talk to me about the specifics of your day and I can help you work it out!

To help you plan the perfect wedding timeline, here are some suggestions for how much time to give for each event, as well as a general order of events.

sample timeline

10 hours of coverage with a first look

11:00	Getting ready and detail photos
1:00	First look and couple photos
2:00	Wedding party photos

Note: Depending on the time of the year, we can plan a quick golden hour shoot for your couple photos.

the details

Because you have most likely spent time carefully picking various details of your wedding, I enjoy photographing them as part of your day's story! Please gather all of your wedding details and have it available for me to shoot when I arrive. After greeting you, I'll begin taking detail photographs while your hair and makeup are being done. I suggest gathering these items in a box ahead of time.

Quick tip: If you want clutter-free images, designate a room or a section of the room as the bag area and keep the majority of your belongings there.

getting ready

I'd like to capture your excitement and emotion while you prepare. Those priceless moments with your bridesmaids, mother, sister, or anyone else who is assisting you. These photographs usually end up being my favourites. There's something about the jitters leading up to the wedding, the small moments of "this is it," and the often booze-induced chuckles with your best friends.

This part is primarily candid. However, I try to make sure everyone is generally ready before I start photographing them. You probably don't want a photo of yourself with half-done makeup or hair.

what to wear

You'll want to ensure that you're getting ready in a way that you'd want to be captured on photos. It's absolutely up to you how you go about doing so. For some brides, having her bridal party wear matching outfits is the way to go. Others would think of it as giving everyone a customised shirt or robe to wear while getting their hair and makeup done. After all, you're not just making memories on your wedding day; you're also preserving them. By the time I enter the room, you should all be looking and feeling fantastic!

the space

After your venue and ceremony area, the getting ready place is the most important space on your wedding day. It's where you'll spend the morning with your wedding party, get ready and have photographs taken. When picking a location for getting ready, look for an open space with plenty of natural light. Consider renting out a lovely Airbnb or boutique hotel room if the space provided by your venue for getting ready does not seem to be a suitable fit.

first look

Let's face it: your wedding is both the best and most stressful day of your life. I usually advise my couples to do a first look since it allows you to have a quiet moment with your partner away from the crowds at the ceremony. You get to take a break from the hustle and bustle to spend some quality time with each other and soak up the love and excitement.

You want to see that teary and emotional reaction from your partner when you first see each other. However, when you're up in front of a large crowd, it's difficult to concentrate about anything other than the faces staring at you.

What I've discovered is that taking a first look gives you a safe space to be emotional and enjoy the moment. After seeing each other for the first time, you can hug, kiss, twirl, and get a good look at each other without feeling rushed. First look photos give you a moment in your crazy day to tell each other how much you love each other in private.

I'm a sucker for first looks, so it goes without saying that I adore them. But this isn't about me, so if you prefer to stick to the traditional way, that's fine! I never want my couples to feel like I'm pressuring them to have a first look, but I do want you to be informed!

couple's photos

After the first look, we'll capture some photos of just the two of you. I suggest that you ask your friends and family to give you space during this part. Most people find it easier to relax when they aren't in front of an audience. But hey, if you prefer to have your own personal hype team with you, go ahead! We'll do this section straight after the ceremony if you don't do a first look. In either case, you're overflowing with joy and love, and these images will prove it!

One of the most common worries I hear is this one. When this concern is brought up, it typically means "I've never had professional photos taken before" or "I'm awkward/nervous in front of the camera" - and it's one of my favourites to answer because I always say, "It doesn't matter!"

You won't be stiffly posed or nervously standing in an uncomfortable position long enough to wonder what your hands are meant to do. I'm sure you've had enough of that with school photos. Expect to be reminded of the power and beauty of your love story by laughing until it hurts and running around like weirdos. I will never try to change you into something you aren't; instead, I will give you the freedom to be the fullest version of yourself because I believe that's where beautiful imagery emerges. This isn't a photoshoot for Vogue, you're much more interesting than that.

You'll leave with hundreds of photographs that will capture your love for each other. Believe me when I say you're going to look amazing!

the wedding party

It's time for the wedding party after your first look and couple's photos. I'll take some shots of just one partner's side, then the other's, and then a group shot of everyone. I'll also make sure to grab individual shots of the two of you with members of your party. If you don't want to do a first look, we'll do this section after the ceremony.

I know you want your wedding to be a blast for all of your best friends. So, similarly to the couple's shoot, I avoid stiff poses. One of my favourite wedding party prompts is to have the couple kiss while everyone else cheers loudly!

Get everyone's bouquets ready and boutonnieres on!

the ceremony

And we're finally here! This is the moment you've been looking forward to. It's easy to get caught up in all the preparations and stress. However, remember the most important thing is that this is the beginning of your lives together. Savour this moment!

The usual ceremony lasts approximately 30 minutes, but if you want to include any specific traditions, I'd recommend giving yourself an hour.

Two important tips that I have are asking your officiant to move out of the way before the first kiss so they aren't in the background of the photo and holding your kiss longer than usual for lots of shots!

the family

My goal is for you to have the most enjoyable and efficient family photos possible! While they may appear daunting, I am here to make them go smoothly. Here are some tips:

✦ let your family know

Make sure the family members who will be in your group shots are aware ahead of time. You can also have your officiant make an announcement asking family members to meet for photos after the ceremony in a designated location.

✦ prepare a shotlist

Before your wedding, I will request a shot list so that I can get all of the family photo combinations you want. This way, I can have my assistant or a friend of yours call out who is up next and we won't forget any shots that you listed.

✦ person in charge

It can be a huge help to have a friend or family member who knows your families to assist in making sure everyone in the family photos is there and ready to go.

✦ big to small group

I suggest starting with the largest group and working your way down to smaller groups so that any visitors who are no longer required can be dismissed. I also recommend taking photos of grandparents or older guests first so that they can be dismissed earlier as well.

✦ avoid phone photos

When a guest takes a photo over my shoulder, it can confuse folks as to where to look and slow down the process. Please ask guests to refrain from taking photos with their phones.

the reception

You've done it! Woohoo! Now that you're married, it's time to celebrate! I'll shoot some candid and group shots during the reception, so if you have any friends or extended family members you need photos with, now is the time! During the reception, a lot of things happen, therefore I'll photograph everything. You have the freedom to make the reception your own! The possibilities are endless!

Here are the usual reception events:

- grand entrance
- toasts
- first dance
- parent dances
- bouquet toss
- garter toss
- cake cutting
- grand exit/ send-off

unplugged wedding

When you marry the love of your life, you ask all of your closest friends and family to be there to rejoice with you and witness your union. You want them to be there to share this special moment with you; you want to see their faces, their grins, their tears of joy and excitement as you walk down the aisle. You don't want to glance back down the aisle and find people taking shots of you with cameras and phones covering their faces.

I've witnessed many situations where a guest's phone is sticking out into the aisle, obstructing not just the moment but also the images I'm capturing as your photographer. I strongly recommend having an unplugged ceremony to avoid phones dangling down the aisle and to allow guests to be more present.

There are a few ways to inform your guests if you decide to have an unplugged wedding. Tell them early through the invite by adding a line that says, 'We would love you to be there, so we are having an unplugged wedding, please no photos during the ceremony.' You can also request that the officiant make a brief announcement requesting guests to turn off their phones and refrain from taking photos.

self care

Don't forget about the most important person in your wedding—you! Wedding planning isn't simply time-consuming; it can also be intimidating at times. You might be stressed, overwhelmed, and spread a little (or a lot) too thin as your big day approaches.

Self-care is a very vital aspect of wedding planning, as well as life, that many people overlook. No matter how overwhelmed you are with wedding planning, your physical and mental health should not be taken for granted.

Sure, there may be snags along the way or even on the big day, but the most important thing is that you're being married and all of your friends and family will be there to celebrate with you! The couples that have the most fun during their weddings are those who focus on the important things and don't sweat the small stuff.
